GLOBE AVIATORS HANDLED WELCOME BY NEW YORKERS

Thousands Cheer Round-world
Fliers as They Sweep
Down Over Gotham

LAND AT MITCHELL FIELD

Prince of Wales in Group to Welcome Airmen on Trip
To Gotham

(By the Associated Press)
MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y., Sept.
8.—The army round-the-world fliers reached the aviation field here at 3:30 o'clock today from Boston.

Swinging across the Bronx,
the airmen proceeded down Manhattan island to the battery. Scores of thousands of New Yorkers stationed on house tops, on sidewalks and in cars
watching the squadron as it
sped southward.

Following Fifth and Madison avenues the planes were visible to a multitude who gave them a noisy
welcome. Whistles of factories, steamboats, subways and elevated
trains, thousands of automobile
horns sounded and a great cheer
went up from the pavement and house-tops. The Prince of Wales was among those to greet the fliers.

BOSTON, Sept. 8.—The six world
fliers today were ready to make the 220 mile hop to Mitchell field, N.
Y., the first jump of the home
stretch to the Pacific coast which is expected to be accomplished within 10 days. Wheels have replaced the pneumatics since the planes left England.

It is planned to step in New York
only overnight and to resume the flight to Washington tomorrow. The exact route to be followed to Seattle is still undetermined but that the world cruisers are to make stops at Dayton, O., St. Joseph, Mo., has been definitely decided upon.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 8.—
One of the escort planes accompanying the world fliers on their trip
from East Boston airport to Mitchell field, piloted by Lieut. Earl S.
Hoag and Louis Jankowski, mechanical, was wrecked today when the engine went dead. The plane crashed into a stone wall as Lieut.
Hoag tried to volplane to an open field.

Both men escaped with minor
scratches about the face but the plane was wrecked.

BOSTON, Airport, Sept. 8.—The American world fliers took off from the airport here today at 12:02
o'clock on the first of a series of jumps to Seattle that will complete
the circumnavigation of the world.
Weather conditions were good. They expected to arrive at Mitchell field
at 3:00 p. m.

STONEWALL FAIR BEST ON RECORD

Last of Series of Township
Fairs Reported Unusually Good

All reports from Stonewall agree that the township fair held there Saturday was a great success in every detail.

Stonewall is situated in the midst
of one of the best farming sections of the county and the people have
from the beginning taken a great deal of interest in their fair. Every year has seen an improvement and
this year's line of exhibits is said
to have been far superior to all preceding fairs, especially in quality.

An unusually large crowd is reported to have been on hand all day.

Maine Prepared to Cast Vote Testing Democratic Strength

(By the Associated Press)
PORTLAND, Sept. 8.—The largest vote in the history of Maine is expected at today's biennial state election in which the contest for governor waged largely about the Ku Klux Klan, which overshadows
all other considerations.

Officers of the Democratic state committee today predicted that William R. Pattangall, who is opposed to the Klan, would carry the state
by a plurality of from 15,000 to 30,- 000. The chairman of the Republican state committee, on the other hand, predicted that Ralph O. Brewer would win by from 25,000 to 30,- 000. The chairman of the Republican state committee, on the other hand,
predicted that Ralph O. Brewer would win by from 25,000 to 40,- 000.

Hindu Held for Misdemeanor

Here's a rap at the medical fraternity.

"Doctor" Kelly is being held in the county jail for practicing medicine without a license.

The "doctor" uses no medicine,
according to officers, but his treatments are in lines of chiropody.

The new inmate of the county jail claims to be a Hindu fortune
teller and since his residence in Ada
he has occupied one of the flats on North Broadway.

His arrest followed the filing of a complaint and was culminated at the home of a white woman, upon whom he is alleged to have been executing treatments.

County Attorney J. W. Dean, who filed charges against Kelly, stated that he had not been arraigned before Judge Tal Crawford. The offense is a misdemeanor and punishable by a maximum fine of $100.
Kelly admitted to officers that he had several white clients.

TEXTBOOKS LEND MANY PROBLEMS

List of Questions and Answers
Show Dealings With Difficulties

With the opening of city schools
here today, school officials are rushing through thousands of pounds of textbooks sent here for distribution
in the city and county under the provisions of the Free Textbook Commission.

Approximately 6000 pounds of books were received for the supply
of city schools last week and city officials are rushing indexing and listing of the books in order to distribute them to the school students
of Ada.

Over 30,000 volumes have been received in the county superintendent's office for distribution to the rural schools of Pontotoc county.
These books are being listed and prepared for distribution but the complete distribution will require
some time owing to the large number of school text matter on hand.

With the installation of the free
textbook system many problems
have come up, which are considered baffling to students and patrons.

Following are a few questions
and answers intended to clarify the situation:

1. Who are entitled to the benefits of the free textbooks? All children enrolled in the first eight grades of any public school in the state.

2. What steps are necessary before a school may secure free textbooks? Some member or employee of the school board or board of education designated as custodian must make requisition for books and execute bond to the state for the same.

3. What is the extent of the liability on this bond? The principal on the bond is not liable for the books after they leave his possession. The bond is not a guarantee of actual possession of the books
but a proper accounting for the same as provided by law. The bond is merely to guarantee compliance
with the law.

4. Is a steel bookcase required by law? It is not.

5. Who is responsible for books which have been damaged, lost, destroyed, or stolen? The child to whom the book was issued, or his parent.

6. May children take books
home at night or over week ends?
To all intents and purposes, the book belongs to the child during the school term or until he withdraws from school.

7. When shall books be replaced? When unfit for use.

8. How are free books secured?
The county superintendent shall distribute books to those districts under his jurisdiction and the appointed custodian shall serve in independent districts.

9. How may high school books
be secured? From the local book store as in the past.

10. May the local dealer carry a stock of the grade books to sell to those who do not desire to use those issued by the state. He may handle them for the state depository, and sell them at retail at approximately 10 per cent higher than the price paid by the state.

11. How may districts secure books if there is no bond or requisition filed? As individuals, by sending to the depository.

12. May a district purchase books and give them to the children? Yes.

13. Must every room or every building in a city have a bookcase
for this purpose. No.

14. Who is the custodian in separate schools in districts which are not independent? The county superintendent. He may appoint a local custodian.

15. Who shall determine when a book is unfit for use? The local school board or those designated by the board.

An optimist is a man who buys
a summer suit now.

If these forest fires keep up we may soon be out of the woods.

SHANGHAI HEARS LOUDER REPORTS FROM WAR ZONES

Artillery and Rifle Fire Growing Louder to Residents
Of Port

REINFORCEMENT ORDERED

Suggested Attacking Forces
May Have Been Sent
Out in Barges

(By the Associated Press)
SHANGHAI, Sept. 8.—Artillery
and rifle fire growing stronger minute by minute was heard late today on the western outskirts of the city.

No official indications as to the source of the fire was available.
It was suggested that the attacking Kiangsu forces, which have been held at Hwangtu on the Shanghai-Nanking railway for nearly a week
by the soldiers of Lu Yung Hsiang,
might have left the railway and sent forces down the waterway from Soochow in junks and barges.

Fighting on the Lihuo front was stopped for a few hours last night
but started again at 3 a. m. today continuing two hours. Things quiet-ed down then and there was little action until noon when Chekiang
troops opened a fresh attack resulting in the advance mentioned.

Three thousand men were sent today to the Lihuo sector to reinforce the troops fighting there. This was a counteract on the reinforcements of the Kiangsu troops who are known to have sent troops from Quianan through the waterway they controlled.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 8.—Advances
on all fronts, particularly west of Taibu, near Kiangtong in the Lihuo sector, were claimed tonight at the headquarters of the Chi Kiang
troops holding back the Kiangsu advance on Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 8.—Armies of General Chang Tso Lin, war lord of Manchuria were in the fields today sweeping down from Manchuria towards Peking against the forces of Wu Pei Fu, his old military rival,
to create a new front in China's civil warfare which has been confined to fighting on the west and south of Shanghai, between rival military governors for possession of the gateway city. The last military gesture in China's interior complications will make the territory between Mukden, the principal city of Manchuria, and Peking in Chihli
province an armed camp, 1,000 miles away from Changhai's line of warfare.

On the battle line added fury was given the fighting over Sunday by the extension of the battle line.

CARPENTERS AT WORK ON FAIR BUILDINGS

A force of carpenters was put to work today to prepare the Pontotoc building for the county fair. The large room will be supplied with
cotton benches, tables and other
equipment and everything made
ready for the opening Wednesday.

The building, which is 50x140
feet in dimensions, is ample for the purpose intended. It will provide quarters for everything likely to be brought in and the management
plans to arrange everything conveniently for both exhibitors and visitors.

In this connection several showcases are needed and if any business men have one or more they can spare for a few days, they will confer a favor on the fair board by notifying J. B. Hill or Mrs. Byron Correll.

Cotton Forecast on Increase Yield Over Report of Last Year

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—A forecast
of 12,787,000 five hundred pound
bales for this year's cotton crop
based on conditions prevailing September 1 and gaining of 958,904
bales prior to September 1 was announced today in the consolidated agriculture and census bureau indicating an acre yield of 151.5 pounds.
Production was 10,128,478 last year when the condition was 54.1
per cent on August 25, the nearest comparative date.

The condition of the crop in Oklahoma was 70 per cent of normal
indicating a yield of 1,289,000
bales.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—New Jersey
organizations which last week sent to Gov. Silzer a protest against the Firro-Poliz fight will seek a court order to halt the bout, it was stated.

FATE OF LEOPOLD AND LOEB SEALED

Caverly Completes Sentence
Deliberation on Chicago
Murder Case

(By the Associated Press)
CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—The fate of Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, sons of old Chicago millionaire families, who kidnapped and murdered Robert Franks last May,
has been sealed.

Three sheets of ruel manila paper
containing approximately 1000 words
is the decision of Judge John R.
Caverly, written yesterday after an escort of guards had accompanied him to church.

Using an ordinary lead pencil and a few sheets of paper Judge Caverly
sat at the desk in his library Sunday afternoon and wrote out the comment which will go down, according to legal men, as one of the most important decisions of modern criminal jurisprudence.

The world will know what the tired
little man wrote shortly after 9:00
o'clock Wednesday morning.

It had been Judge Caverly's intention to retire to some far removed spot but he explained that this large room will be supplied with
cotton benches, tables and other
equipment and everything made
ready for the opening Wednesday.

In the Cook county jail Nathan
F. Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb spent Sunday listening to an entertainment by several professionals. It was the last Sunday they will spend in their old cells. Next Sunday they will either be in death cells awaiting execution or in detention cells
awaiting removal to the Joliet penitentiary.

KIWANIS HEAR OF CONVENTION MATTERS

Convention reports were in order
at noon today when members of the Kiwanis club assembled in the Parish house of the St. Luke's Episcopal church in their regular weekly meeting.

Hugh Norris and A. D. Coon told of the valuable instruction and beneficial hints in civic organization work received through their attendance of the district Kiwanis convention at Lawton, September 1 and 2.

J. E. Garrett also reported on his attendance of the International Kiwanis convention at Denver some time ago.

These reports, including the regular business and routine matters, were
the high spots of Monday's meeting of the Ada Kiwanis club.

Guests of the luncheon were: J.
B. Gilbreath, Harry Wilenzick, T. B.
Blake, L. H. Pendergrass of Oklahoma City and E. L. Kirkpatrick of Yeager.

Oklahoma Pastor Takes Issue With Defense Day Plans

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 8.—The first voice against the observation of defense day September 12, was raised Sunday when the Rev. Dwight
Ware, acting pastor of the St.
Luke's Methodist Episcopal church characterized it as "fatuous" and not a test of our ability to defend ourselves. St. Luke's is one of the large-est churches in the southwest, numbers among its congregation several state officials, members of the Defense Day committee.

"There is great danger in this scheme," the Reverend Ware declared, referring to the mobilization
feature of the day.

"It encourages the militaristic parties of the world, and above all
it gives our peace loving people a chance to applaud the principles of war when they unthinkingly believe it is patriotism to do so."

ADA INDEPENDENTS DEFEAT HEALDTON

Green's Nine Stage Ninth Inning Rally to Win From Heraldton

Revenge was sweet for the Ada
Independents, A. O. Green's aggregation of baseball stars, when they staged a ninth-inning rally and beat
out the Heraldton team at Haldton
Sunday to the tune of 7 to 6.

After R. Waner had passed on a long drive to right center in the last half of the ninth with the score
standing 6 to 5 for Heraldton, Thompson stepped to the plate to deliver a screaming double down
the right field line and was followed by L. Waner who played to the left with a terrific drive for two bases, scoring Thompson. Fair rapped out a single between short and second scoring L. Waner and ending the struggle in grandstand
dramatics.

Ada led the attack with a 5 to 2 lead until the eighth inning when the Heraldton club rallied and sent four runs across the plate. The ninth inning rally game the invading Ada team a deserved victory over Heraldton, having outlived them thruout the game by a margin of 16
hits to 8.

Formby and Lee heaved and received for Ada while Glover and Woods officiated on the mound and behind the plate for Heraldton.
Formby easily fared the better over his opponent moundman, outpitch-
ing him in every angle.

The revised batting order sent in
by Green for the Ada club proved effective. Pain at cleanup position delivered at the pace of five times
at bat and five hits to his credit.
L. Waner came in next for his hitting bee, claiming three hits out of five chances, Thompson and Johnson delivered two hits each, Johnson
pounding out one triple and Thompson chalked up a double.

While Green offered no protest to the officials of the game, supporters of the team declare that field
and strike umpiring was far from satisfactory.

The Ada team will go to Oklahoma City next Sunday where it tangles with a picked team of past and present professionals under the management of Ned Pettigrew, who is managing the team for the Booster Association feature game.

SCHOOLS OF ADA OPEN DOORS FOR SEASON'S LABORS

East Central Certain to Pass
All Records in Enrollment, Linscheid Says

MORE INSTRUCTORS

High and Ward Schools Are Open for Invasion of Students

School days were again in vogue
in Ada today as hundreds of students, young and old, hurried to ward, high school and college buildings to launch on a program of year's work in the educational
field.

With the first rush of school preparedness, Ada felt a faster pace
of life after a summer of rest.
School buildings were spick and
span for the opening and teachers
were on hand to welcome students
on their first visit to the scenes of their year's activities.

East Central College was the scene of a mad rush of hundreds of students at the opening of the doors
of the institution early this morning. An office force of 20 people were swamped today by the horde
of students enrolling in the institution for the nine months college
term.

In addition to the office force at the College others were busy classifying and adjusting credits of students coming to the institution for the year.

Record Enrollment Seen

At noon today, 700 students had enrolled for the year but President Linscheid of the College could not consider this a barometer for the year's attendance at the College except that it had surpassed by far the enrollment at that time for the first day on the year previous.

President Linscheid stated that there exists no doubt but that the enrollment at the College will eclipse any year in the history of the institution. No definite figure on enrollment will be available before the end of the week.

To meet the expected increase in enrollment this year, preparations
have been made during the summer months for the phenomenal increase in student body. Every inch of possible classroom space has been appropriated and drafted into use. The greatest problem facing the College
at the present time is the lack of classroom space.

To meet the increase in student enrollment, six additional instructors have been employed for duty
this year. With the exception of the new economics and sociology departments, which were last year offered under one head, instructors
are being used to supply overflow departments.

City Schools Open
On account of the time necessitated in the preliminary steps to the opening of the institution, classes
were not scheduled to meet today
but all classes will swing into session tomorrow to continue for the remainder of the year.

The College is not the only educational institution in Ada to receive the invasion of those in quest of learning, the Ada high school
and ward schools were suffering from the deluge of youngsters from all corners of the city.

Following the opening of the doors of this morning, teachers have been kept busy with the enrollment
of students for the ensuing year.

Classroom work will start tomorrow despite the fact that free textbooks will not be available for use until later in the week. School officials of the city were laboring in a sea of textbooks today in an effort to index and list textbooks so that they may be distributed before the end of the week.

PRINCE TO WELCOME FLIERS AT NEW YORK

(By the Associated Press)
SYOSSET, New York, Sept. 8.—
The Prince of Wales will motor to Mitchell field this afternoon to greet the world fliers. His presence on the field will unofficially for he will be there, not as the British representative, but as Edward Windsor, Great Britain's formal and official congratulations will be extended by the British ambassador.

SYOSSET, N. Y., Sept. 8.—The Prince of Wales having gotten into good shape on the polo field and exercising early in the swimming pool
on the James A. Burden estate
where he is resting, is expected soon
to take another form of country
gentleman sport on Long Island—
fox hunting.

He paid a visit to the kennels of the Meadow Park hunting club yesterday and looked over the English
and American hounds and horses
with great interest.

The hunting season on Long Island just has begun.

Of course no one could expect such good fortune as the entire absence of boll weevils this year, although they are not so numerous as they were at this season of the year as for the past three years. A. A. Aldrich picked up several punctured squares south of Ada which he brought to The News office. The weevil larvae were there all right. However, on one of them was a parasite which would have devoured it in a few days. If the parasite is numerous enough it will have no small influence in holding down the weevil, but it goes without saying that it will not do to depend entirely on it to do the work. It will take some fighting to hold the pest down until some bolls can be put on.

The Pontotoc County Beekeepers association has been called to meet at the Chamber of Commerce rooms at the city hall Saturday afternoon at 1:30. All persons in the county who are interested in bees are urged to attend. The object of the meeting is to decide whether to invite the state meeting of beekeepers to come to Ada in the near future. If any interest is shown in the matter it will be invited probably sometime in August.

Some complaint has been heard about lice on cucumbers. It is said that Blackleaf 40, or nicotine sulphate as it is sometimes called, is a sure remedy when applied right. A small bottle mixed with six gallons of strong soapuds will spray a large patch. W. L. Whitaker, a very successful grower of such vegetables, says if the vines are more than three feet long a great deal of spraying can be saved by cutting the vines back to three feet and burning the parts cut off in order to kill the lice. The same thing applies to cantaloupes. He says the shortened vines will grow stockier and make better fruit. A sharp knife or shears should be used in cutting the vines since a hoe is likely to pull the vines and damage the fruit.

Market Bulletin

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 8.—Egg production, while showing some decrease, is still normal or better for time of year. Trade has been light around holiday times, which is usual and prices would possibly work to a lower level, except that the figures of the 26 largest storage points show that on July 1 the holdings of eggs were approximately 12 to 14 percent lower than one year ago.

The quality being received at the present time is probably the best that has been experienced at this season in any previous year, due no doubt to cooler weather, the general better care being given eggs by producers, and the necessity for candling before shipment.

Indications are that the production of butter has now reached the flush, and although the surplus in storage is heavier than one year ago, markets should remain steady unless influenced by larger receipts of imported butter. The quality can be improved if the producer will properly care for and market the cream often during warm weather.

The movement of spring chickens has increased materially and as a result markets for both live and dressed have shown a steady decline. Look for this condition to exist for some time as present prices are too high for storage purposes.

With decreased production of eggs it is natural to look for increased marketing of fowl, which may have a tendency to hold the market at about its present level.—Swift & Company.

ARDMORE VETS SELECT DELEGATES FOR MEET

ARDMORE.—Selection of delegates to the point state convention the American Legion and 40 Hommes-8 Chevaux, which will be held July 28-29 at Ada, was made at the regular semi-monthly meeting of the organizations held last evening at the Hotel Ardmore.

Legion delegates who were selected were: Mark Davis, Harold B. Fell, Freeman Galt, Lawrence Beattie, Walter McLaughlin, Ben Hunter, Anderson Gill, Charles Clowe, T. B. Orr, Frank Heenan, Dr. G. E. Johnson, Major Crosby, Earl Littler, Earl Hendon, Eugene Cruce, Bill Krown, Willis Tenneyson, J. T. Spears and J. T. Scivally.

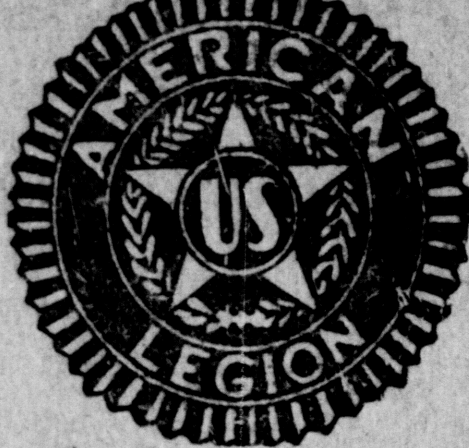

Members of the 40 Hommes-8 Chevaux who will attend the convention are: T. P. Orr, Frank Schneider, Freeman Galt, Harold B. Fell, Anderson Gill, Charles Clowe, Ben Hunter, Mark Davis, Lawrence Beattie, Dr. G. E. Johnson, William Rumse and Harold Brown.

Every legionnaire is cordially invited to attend the convention, according to W. F. Rumse, post adjutant. The trip to Ada will be made overland by motor, Mr. Rumse said. Those who intend to make the trip are asked to notify either Mr. Rumse or Frank Schneider, post commander.

SENATE CANDIDATE FACES LIBEL CHARGE

OKLAHOMA CITY.—Charges of criminal libel here made against W. J. Loe, farmer-labor candidate for the United States senate, in an information filed in Oklahoma county court late today. George Wilson was the complaining witness.

A statement that Wilson received $3,000 for his influence in the El Reno convention last March, contained in a pamphlet alleged to have been issued by Loe, was the basis upon which Wilson instituted action. The charges against Loe were filed by Mont Powell, assistant county attorney. Wilson asserts the statements in the pamphlet are false.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 8.—American legion activities in the department of Oklahoma, during the past week, have centered around the distribution and filling out of adjusted compensation blanks for former-service men.

With but few exceptions the 300 American legion posts in the state have established adjusted compensation headquarters, generally in a building handy to the business section of the city, where the veterans may obtain the blanks, and fill them out with the assistance of legionnaires.

In a number of cities, Okmulgee, Oklahoma City and Cushing, particularly, downtown headquarters were maintained with a large force of stenographers who typed the blanks for the ex-service men, furnished experts to take finger prints and supervised the work of filling out the applications, to see that correct information was given.

Within the past week, it is estimated between 15,000 and 20,000 blanks were filled out by veterans at the different legion headquarters in Oklahoma.

The busiest legion members in the state, at this time, are the members of the Norman Howard post, Ada, hosts to the state convention, July 28-29. Daily meetings are being held by the various committees and joint meetings of the committee chairmen to report the progress in preparing the program for the convention. Ada legion officials predict the "largest and best" gathering of Oklahoma veterans since the war. Besides the customary forms of entertainment at such assemblies including parades and banquets, the Ada veterans have completed plans for a 24-hour program each day. The schedule includes a rodeo performance each afternoon, a bathing girl review, dances each evening, lunches at noon, dinners, prize fights, free moving picture shows. Forty and Eight society entertainments, swimming contests, athletic events and a series of surprise events which Ada veterans insist will make new entertainment history. Between 2,500 and 3,000 visitors are expected. Hotels and rooming houses have been reserved for the veterans, while a reserve supply of accommodations will be made available. Rooms in residential districts will be listed to take care of the over-flow crowd. The armory will be pressed into service to house the veterans if needed. The Ada legion home is credited with being one of the finest in the state. It was built by a bond issue of the city at a cost of approximately $125,000. Besides the legion club rooms and offices, the building includes an auditorium seating 2,500 to 3,000 persons. The business session of the convention will be held in this legion home.

Considerable interest is being manifested in the pre-convention campaign being staged by several Oklahoma cities to obtain the 1925 convention of the legion. The first city to announce for the convention was Pawhuska. Enid, too, is now working to obtain the next year's meeting of the veterans, while Sapulpa is understood to be putting out feelers. Okmulgee, also is mentioned as being a contender for the honor.

Haywood Falls as Drawing Card on Soviet Lecture Platform

RIGA.—William (Big Bill) Haywood, convicted I. W. W. leader who jumped his bail in Chicago and fled to Russia several years ago, has taken the lecture platform, according to American travelers recently from Moscow. Although he knows only a few words of Russian, he speaks through an interpreter, relating his experiences in the United States with the government and telling of conditions there generally. Haywood made an extended speaking tour in the Caucasus this spring but did not prove the drawing card that Soviet officials anticipated that he would. Since his efforts to establish a self-supporting colony in the Urals, made up chiefly of Bolsheviks from America, which venture proved a failure under his direction, Haywood has made his headquarters in Moscow.

SWAT-THE-FLY ERA TO BE POSTPONED

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 8.—There are not enough flies in Oklahoma City to worry about.

That's what the boys say. So the campaign launched three weeks ago by the Boy Scouts and the Civitan club has been postponed until the first week in August. Flies will be more plentiful then.

Agreement to put off the drive until August was reached Monday night after a conference between W. C. Hunter, Scout executive, and Civitan Club leaders.

"A large number of boys have been working their heads off to catch flies since the drive opened and have been able to catch only a handful," said Hunter. "The flies simply are not here. The boys all agree that it will be better to delay the campaign a month."

John Lowthian, who caught one and three-fourth quarts of flies, was awarded first prize, $12. Second prize of $10 went to Lester Craig. Other boys said they didn't catch enough to count.

COLLEGE NOTES

A special assembly was called this morning for the purpose of letting the students and town people know that an annual association existed. Those witnessing the performance this morning at 10 o'clock in the college auditorium realize full well that such an organization exists and is a going concern.

While the orchestra played "March of the Wooden Soldiers" a real live bunch marched in, in full regalia. There was nothing wooden in sight except their canes.

The following program was given: Numbers by boys quartet. Enology.—Mr. Moffitt. Talk.—Oscar Parker.

Jokes and announcement of the "big" football game during homecoming for East Central, Oct. 30, and banquet Oct. 31.—Mr. Norris.

Of course Mr. Norris pulled some stunts and promised some better ones on home-coming.

The alumni has ninety members who make a real organization that is on the map. Every member is expected here on home-coming.

Hon. J. W. Bridges, a Smith-Hughes man and supervisor of education of agriculture, lectured.

Attention Rural Teachers. The East Central Rural Club will meet Wednesday, July 9, 3 p. m. in the auditorium. A sixty minute program will be given.

Hear what is being done in our own rural schools, "from those who are doing it." Every rural teacher and prospective rural teacher is a member of this club. No dues. Just inspiration for a great work. Your fellow-workers will expect you at this meeting.

A four weeks extension course will be offered during the month of August in English, mathematics, history, education and foreign language. If interested hand Miss Tidwell your name and the course you wish to enroll in.

GUARDEMEN TO HAVE EARLY RISE AT CAMP

Reveille to Sound at 5:30 a. m. For Oklahoma Guardsmen at Fort Sill

(By the Associated Press)

FORT SILL, Okla., July 8.—The day is going to start early for the Oklahoma guardsmen, members of the units of the 45th division of national guardsmen, who will be encamped here for two weeks beginning August 4.

According to the daily program included in a general order issued by General Baird H. Markham, adjutant general, and commanding officers of the 45th division, reveille will sound at 5:30 every day but Sunday. A revival of the war-time songs in which the soldiers implore the murder of the bugler is predicted.

Breakfast for the guardsmen will be at 6 o'clock on week-days and an hour later on Sundays when the men will be allowed to sleep until that time.

From 7 a. m. until 11 o'clock the troops will be on the drill field. Unit commanders will meet with the commanding officer and the divisional staff at 11:15 every day, the orders say. Dinner is at 12:15 and from 1:15 until 2:15 the men will be in class rooms for instruction in the technical and mathematical problems included in the text books of the guard. There will be no class room work on Saturdays and Sundays. Retreat and ceremonials to the colors are scheduled for 5 o'clock each day.

Mess call for supper for the enlisted men will be blown at 6 o'clock and for the officers 6:30. An evening band concert, except Saturday, will be presented at 6:45.

The officers of the day will inspect the guards at 7:15 and the sentries will be posted at 7:30 each evening. Taps will sound at 11 o'clock every night.

More than 5,000 guardsmen will be in camp during the state mobilization, officers here say. All units of the 45th division except the tank and air forces which are stationed in Colorado will be encamped.

What My Neighbor Says

Is of Interest to Ada Folks.

When one has had the misfortune to suffer from backache, headaches, dizziness, urinary disorders and other kidney ills—and has found relief from all this sickness and suffering, that person's advice is of untold value to friends and neighbors. The following case is only one of many thousands, but it is that of an Ada resident. Who could ask for a better example?

Mrs. Robert Ellis, 210 W. 8th St., says: "Across the small of my back there was a heavy aching that nearly laid me up. This continued with no let-up until I used Doan's Pills from Gwin & Mays Drug Store. Doan's gave me relief at once."

FOUR YEARS LATER, Mrs. Ellis added: "I haven't had to use Doan's Pills since and I gladly confirm my former statement."

Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Ellis had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

OIL COMPANIES NOW PROTEST COUNTY TAX

ARDMORE.—The county equalization board is in session today hearing protests from oil companies operating in the fields adjacent to Ardmore who are asking that tax on certain properties be remitted.

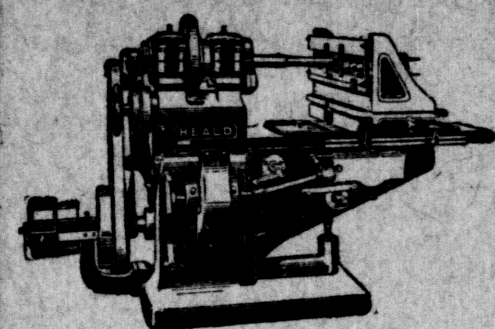

The hearing is based on a point of law as to whether the gross production tax of 3 per cent covers all property used in production on the leases or whether improvements and machinery used in production are taxable as a separate item.

Jesse Hill, general attorney for the Texas Company, W. N. Banks, attorney for the National Supply Company, and Senator Wash Hudson, who was chairman of the senate committee that passed the gross production tax bill, all of Tulsa, were among the out-of-town representatives who with local producers are threshing the matter out with the board.

The county's case is being looked after by John L. Hodge, county attorney. The case will probably be settled locally this afternoon, but it is intimated that the point will have to be argued before the courts before final settlement is reached.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

SEEK YE THE LORD while He may be found, call ye upon Him while He is near; let the wicked forsake His way, and the unrighteous man his thought: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon.—Isaiah 55:6, 7.

THE SALVATION ARMY.

Probably no other organization in recent times has had so many obstacles to overcome in order to make itself recognized as the unflinching friend of humanity as beset the Salvation Army. When it was launched by Gen. Booth and his faithful wife the founders met the persecution and ridicule that is the usual lot of leaders of a movement and it was only by slow degrees that the Army gained in strength and was applauded for its good work.

The Salvation Army has invaded nearly every nation on earth. It has not only carried the gospel to those who would have heard it in no other way but it has dealt with the material side of life and relieved untold suffering. Not only have the inhabitants of the slums and the dives been reached but in time of public calamity the Army has been early on the spot at all times. During the war millions of soldiers had occasion to bless the Salvation Army and today would fight any man who dared to say anything disrespectful to one wearing the uniform of the Army.

Of course the members of the organization, being for the most part poor, are unable to provide even a fractional part of the means necessary to carry on the work, but the Army has so far won the respect of the public that people of every station in life contribute freely to the support of the charities it maintains.

Today is the tenth anniversary of the first battle of the Marne. It was here that the French made their last stand in defense of Paris and drove von Kluck's army back to trenches where it remained for four years. The defeat of von Kluck's army made it necessary for the other advancing hosts to fall back also and Paris was saved. This completely upset the carefully laid plans of the Germans which had been worked out in course of years of painstaking calculation and ended their hope of the speedy victory they thought was theirs beyond the power of France and Great Britain to snatch from them. This ranks as one of the decisive battles of the world for it ended all chances of the kaiser's dream of world power being realized. Everything depended upon a swift stroke and the stroke once parried could never be repeated. Providence never intended for one man to rule the world as has been proved by the fate of every one who tried it. The kaiser in one of his speeches some years before had boasted that where others had failed he would succeed, but with the repulse at the Marne he realized that his chance for greatness was gone.

Somehow we cannot work up any enthusiasm over this agitation for enlarging the navy. Having scrapped a large part of the fighting craft in accordance with the disarmament treaty, we fail to see why the government should spend a lot of money building other vessels. Looks very much like some ship builders are out after some of the nice, juicy government contracts like they had in the good old days. It is very plain that the next war, if there is one, will be fought in the air and from the air rather than on the sea, or land. The great strides in aerial navigation point very conclusively to the time when the biggest battleship will be worthless and at the mercy of the fliers.

The News hopes the issues of the last weekly and of Sunday will have the effect of bringing to the minds of the citizens of Pontotoc county the many resources we have and the possibilities of the future. We also hope that it may be a source of information to those of other sections who may chance to see it. The editors made no effort to paint a picture in colors more rosy than they actually are. We believe in the future of this section and exaggeration would do no good and might do much harm. If you have friends in other places who are interested in this country, send them a copy of the paper.

President Coolidge's latest speech indicates that he is somewhat alarmed about La Follette's attack on the powers of the supreme court but he had nothing to say on the real issues of the campaign. He did not say what he thought of the issues raised by his running mate nor of those laid down by John W. Davis. The supreme court is in no special danger but other questions are pressing for settlement and the country would like to know what he thinks of them.

It is reported from McAlester that there are now eight men in death cells at the penitentiary. Since Trapp became governor these cells are no longer the joke they once were. Three or four have been emptied during the present year.

"Get the money" does not seem to be getting it very fast this year.

STATE PLANS OUT FOR DEFENSE DAY

Oklahoma's Soldiers of Past, Present and Future Called to Mobilize

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 8.—Oklahoma's soldiers of the past, present and future will mobilize for Defense day, September 12, and state and municipal authorities of virtually all cities of the state will lend every effort to make the occasion a success, according to reports reaching the office of Gov. M. E. Trapp and Baird H. Markham, adjutant general.

The 5,000 members of the Oklahoma national guard will mobilize at their home stations and take part in the parades which will feature the observance of the day in Oklahoma cities and towns. Commanders of the Confederate veterans, Grand Army of the Republic, Spanish-American war veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion have asked their members to march in the parades, and scout masters of scores of Boy Scout units have prepared to marshal their youthful followers for the day. Former army nurses and World war relief organizations including the Salvation Army, the Knights of Columbus, the Young Men's Christian association and Jewish welfare association have assured Governor Trapp of their cooperation.

Defense day has been declared a holiday in Oklahoma by the governor and mayors of the larger cities have proclaimed the occasion a holiday.

Citizens' committees in Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Muskogee, Okmulgee, Fair, Ardmore, Bartlesville and scores of smaller cities have prepared programs of parades, patriotic speech and nationalistic demonstrations.

In Oklahoma City it is expected that more than 25,000 men, women and children will march in the parade which will open the observance. Among the speakers who will address crowds in the capital are Governor Trapp, Secretary of State R. E. Sneed, Labor Commissioner Claude Connally and Attorney General George F. Short.

M. A. Nash, superintendent of education, has declared the day a holiday for Oklahoma schools and urged teachers and pupils to take part in the ceremonies.

According to the plans of the adjutant general's department at a given signal every unit of the Oklahoma National guard will be mobilized, fully equipped and ready to entrain.

Army reserve organizations perfected by members of the Officers Reserve corps will assemble, the skeletonized ranks filled by civilians of military age, who have declared they would volunteer for service should war be declared, according to Col. George Chase Lewis, U. S. A., in charge of the reserve units in Oklahoma.

ELINOR GLYN'S STORY OF WIFE EDUCATION HERE

Elinor Glyn has the reputation of knowing the ins and outs of the hearts of men and women better than any other woman. This is by way of introducing the glad tidings to local film patrons that this British authoress' story, "How to Educate a Wife," will be seen on the screen at the McSwain Theatre today.

Ever since Eve put over the apple stunt on Adam, while the sly serpent hee-hawed somewhere among the verdurous foliage, men have wondered if women could be educated, and if they could, how it was to be done. Some have counseled keeping their wives secluded like the old Turks and their "harems"; others have used force and fists; still others kindness and courtesy.

Elinor Glyn has developed her ideas quite different in this production, which is a Warner Brothers Classic of the screen.

The characters are "just folks" such as we all meet every day. Their problems are our problems and the unfolding of the story leaves the spectator with the feeling that he or she has just had a perplexing problem of his own placed in such a way as to show both sides of the argument at once.

WAS "PLUMB PLAYED OUT" SAYS FRANCIS

But Tanlac Overcame Troubles and Made Him Feel Like New Man.

Even an expert chef for a hotel, with everything heart could wish in the eating line and the skill to prepare it in the most appetizing manner, finds life miserable, and work a burden with his appetite gone and his system all run-down on account of stomach trouble.

According to his own statement, such had been the case for a long time with O. A. Francis, 408 Pearl St., Dallas, Texas, chef for the Merchants Hotel, who declares "Tanalac has made me feel like a new and different man."

Mr. Francis now boasts of an appetite like a lumber jack and a stomach that digests such things as ham and eggs, corned beef and cabbage and rich pastries, foods that only meant suffering for me before I took Tanlac.

"When I started taking Tanlac," said he, "I was just 'plumb played-out' and had to force myself to work. I simply couldn't eat a thing scarcely, I was also terribly bilious and felt dizzy most of the time. I got up mornings with a coated tongue and so tired that I felt unfit for anything."

"But when I tell you I have gained 14 lbs., eat and digest everything and am on the job seven days in the week feeling fine you may know how I appreciate Tanlac. My color was bad, too, before taking Tanlac, but now my color as well as my health, is just about perfect. What it takes to tone a man up and make him feel right Tanlac certainly has it."

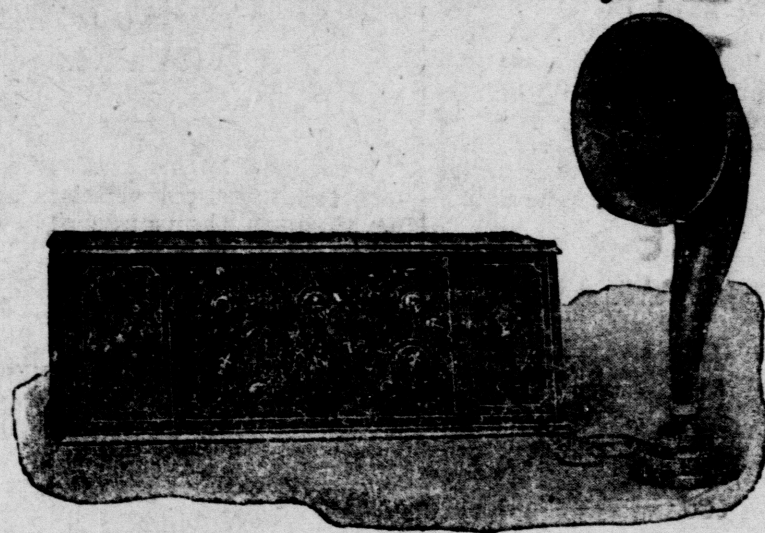

Tanalac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

And every body is on the jump getting ready for school. Then right away here's Thanksgiving with turkey and cranberry sauce; and before we hardly realize it Christmas is right on us—and then the same problem arises—

WHAT SHALL I GIVE?

WE ARE GOING TO HELP YOU

It is a proven fact that the PHOTOGRAPH as a gift has grown in popularity more than any other gift, as it adds the PERSONAL TOUCH.—The GIFT THAT NO ONE CAN PRESENT BUT YOU, and the one that is appreciated above all.

Every year we have been obliged to turn away hundreds of our very best patrons who wait until December to have their work done. Last year 47 orders were not completed for Christmas that were promised, even with the most modern equipment and methods, we could not complete this work.

OUR OFFER—During the months of September and October we are going to finish holiday work, and will accept any order for any amount with a deposit of ONLY $2.00. The work will be completed and held until December, or when you wish, at which time the balance can be paid. By so doing, it gives us a chance to finish every order RIGHT and disappoint no one—and besides we might slip in a NICE EXTRA ONE.

We anticipate the largest business we have ever had, and it is very doubtful if we can take care of few special sittings in December. REMEMBER this ad is for YOUR BENEFIT, as we are busy all the time. We have had no lull in business this entire year.

Missionary Work Told by McAdams Revival Workers

Large crowds were in attendance at the McAdams tent, both Sunday afternoon and evening.

As previously announced, Mrs. McAdams lectured on their trip to the British West India islands as missionary, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, which was very interesting and instructive.

Barbados, the island upon which they labored was only 22 miles long and 11 miles wide, was vastly populated, there being so very many poor people there. Their customs and manner of living were contrasted with those of our own country. She told the boys and girls of the "Ragged S. S." which was provided for the poorest of the little one and of how the missionaries were trying to help all classes get a knowledge of Jesus, their best friend.

They visited the "lepers home" containing over 200 inmates, and told how that dreaded disease was eating away and destroying their bodies; telling the children how "sin" in a similar way destroys the soul of man.

At the evening service only about one-half the people could be accommodated under the tent.

Mrs. McAdams brought a powerful message on the "Love of God" which was beautifully illustrated making it very impressive. The same subject will be continued tonight.

SPEAKERS ANNOUNCED FOR LA FOLLETTE-WHEELER FIGHT

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Speakers for the La Follette-Wheeler forces who will carry the campaign into every section of the country were announced today by the national director of the speaker's bureau of the Independent ticket. Perhaps she would. At any rate she shuddered delightfully. She found a bullet-hole in the door and put a pink forefinger into it, giving a second little shiver.

"And now," she cried, going to a chair near the table, "do tell me all about that terrible, terrible night. But do you think we are quite safe here now, Mr. Lee?"

CLAUDE REEDS ADDED TO GRIDIRON FACULTY

NORMAN, Sept. 8.—(Special).—With the addition of Claude Reeds, who was voted to be the greatest football player in the history of the University of Oklahoma, the coaching staff of the university will be ready September 15 to begin the work of grinding out an eleven capable of doing creditable work in the Missouri Valley.

Reeds, who has been employed as coach, will work with the backfield. He will make the fourth member of the staff of veterans, composed of Ben G. Owen, director of athletics, Ed McEacham, freshman coach for several years, and Hugh V. McDermott.

Reeds was a three-year letter man in four major sports, football, basketball, baseball and track, while at the University of Oklahoma in 1911, '12 and '13. From here he went to the Austin, Tex., baseball team in the Texas league. In 1914 and 1915 he coached at Southwestern State Teachers' college, Weatherford, and from 1915 to 1917 he was assistant to Harry Hughes, coach of the Colorado Aggies. Since then he has farmed in Cleveland county, but has kept in close touch with Snover problems.

He comes to the university fresh from a summer's coaching course under Fielding H. Yost at Michigan. He is scheduled to arrive in Norman for work September 13. Owen and McDermott have just returned from a month's outing in New Mexico.

CHAPTER IX

Poker Face and a White Pigeon.

Mrs. Simpson had made a discovery. It was epoch-making. It was tremendous. Nothing short of that! So, at the very least, Mrs. Simpson was prepared to maintain stoutly in the face of possible ridicule.

One morning, very early, Mrs. Simpson, from the thick curtains of the living room, saw Jose "browsing around suspiciously in the courtyard!" She had sensed Jose's dislike, and thrilled at the sight. She always thrilled to Jose. The half-breed had gone silent, "sneaking-like," by Judith's outer door. He had passed there, listening. He had gone back to the courtyard, hesitating, pretending that he was looking at the roses! Such a ruse on the part of so black-breathed a villain inspired in the scarcely-breathing Mrs. Simpson a vast disgust. As if he could fool her like that, pottering around among the roses.

She, too, sought to move silently in his wake, though under her ample weight the veranda creaked audibly. Still, making less noise than usual, she peered through the illacs. She saw Jose at the base of the knoll, going swiftly toward the stables. She saw another man who, evidently, was a third of the "gang," and who, of course, had risen early to creep out of the men's bunkhouse before the others were awake, to meet Jose.

Screening herself behind the illacs, her heart throbbing as it had not done for many a long year, she watched.

Jose and the other man did not meet. Jose stopped. The two exchanged a few words too low for Mrs. Simpson to hear at that distance. But she made out that the other man had something in his hand, something white. A pigeon! For, suddenly released, it fluttered out of the man's hands and, circling high above Mrs. Simpson's head, flew to join the other birds cooling on the housetop.

"A carrier-pigeon!" gasped Mrs. Simpson. "Taking a message to the other cutthroats!"

From that instant there was no doubt in her mind. This fitted in too well with her many suspicions not to be the clew she had sought long and unceasingly.

Jose went on, the man from the bunkhouse went back to it, and Mrs. Simpson fled to the house and hastened excitedly to Judith's room. Judith, rudely awakened, came hurriedly to her door in her dressing gown, her eyelids heavy with sleep. When she heard, she laughed.

"You dear old goose!" cried Judith joyously. "I just love you to death. You put fresh interest into life."

Despite Mrs. Simpson's earnest protests, Judith hugged her and pushed her out again, saying that since she was awake now she would want her breakfast just as soon as she could get it. The housekeeper shook her head and retreated heavily.

"You've got to show some folks a man cutting their throats," she muttered to herself, "before they'll believe it. It is a carrier-pigeon and I know it. And that Black Spanish—ugh! He makes my blood curdle, just to look at him!"

"Carrier-pigeons!" laughed Judith, as she began a hurried dressing. "The dear old goose! And poor old Jose. She'll get something on him yet. I wonder why she—"

Suddenly Judith broke off. She was standing in front of a tall mirror, still only half-dressed. As she looked into the bright face of the smiling girl in the glass, a sudden change came. Pigeons! Doc Tripp had said that Trevers had got them; had remarked on the incongruity of a man like Trevers caring for little cooling birds. It was rather odd. Carrier-pigeons—carrier—

Judith whipped on her dressing gown again and, slipperless, her warm, bare feet patting upon the cold surfaces of the polished floors, she ran to the office.

"Send Jose to me," she called to Mrs. Simpson. "In the office. I want him immediately."

A warm glow came into Mrs. Simpson's breast. With a big kitchen poker behind her broad back, she hastened out to call Jose, Judith, at the telephone, called Doc Tripp.

"Come up immediately," she commanded, "prepared to make a test for hog-cholera germs. Doc. No. I am not sure of anything, but I think I begin to see where it came from and how. Hurry, will you?"

To Jose she said abruptly:

"Go down to the men's quarters. Jose. Tell Carson and Lee to come right up." And as Jose turned to go, she added carelessly: "Seen any of the men yet?"

"St. senoria," answered Jose. "Poker Face is up."

"Poker Face? All right, Jose. The others will be about, then."

Jose took little more time for his errand than for his elaborate bow. Carson and Lee came promptly, Carson a score of steps in advance, for Lee had tarried just long enough to wash his face and brush his hair; Carson had not.

"Tell me," demanded Judith, looking at her cattleman with intent eagerness, "what do you know about Poker Face?"

"One of the best men I've got," answered Carson heartily.

"Square, you think?"

"Yes. If I didn't think so he'd have been on his way a long time ago."

"How long has he been here? Who took him on?"

tion commission is strictly non-partisan, and every one opposed to the invisible empire, irrespective of party or political affiliations is expected,

"Trevers hired him. About the same time he hired me."

Bud Lee, entering then, wondered what new thing was afoot. He glanced down and saw a bare foot peeping out from the hem of Judith's heavy red robe; he saw the hair tumbled in a glorious brown confusion over her shoulders. She was amazingly pretty this way.

"I want you two men to just stick around until I send for you again," said Judith, her eyes upon Carson alone, a little pink, naked foot suddenly withdrawn and tucked somewhere under her in her chair. "And keep your eyes on Poker Face. Keep him here, too, Carson. By the way, did any of you boys come in late last night? Or early this morning?"

"Why, no," answered Carson slowly. "An' yes. None of the regular boys, but a man from down the river, looking for a job. Heard we was short-handed. Blew in early. Just got in a few moments ago, Poker Face said."

Quick new interest flew into Judith's eyes.

"Keep him here, too," she cried. "And I'll give you something to do while you wait: bring me all the pigeons you can get your hands on—white ones. Shoot them if you have to. And be careful you don't rub the dust off their feet."

Carson's eyes went swiftly to Bud Lee's. In Carson's mind there was a quick suspicion: The strain of life on the ranch was proving too much for the girl, after all.

Judith, reading his thought, turned up her nose at him and, seeking to keep her feet hidden as she walked by sagging a little at the knees, went to the door. Turning there, she saw in Lee's eyes the hint of a smile, a very approving, admiring smile.

"Impudent!" she cried within herself. Looking very tiny, her knees bent so that her robe might sweep the floor, she continued with all possible dignity to the hallway. Once there, she ran for her room, her gown fluttering wildly about her. In her room, though she dressed hurriedly, she still took time for a long and critical examination of two rows of little pink toes.

"Just the same," she said to the flushed Judith in the mirror, "they are very nice feet—Bud Lee, I'd just like to make you squirm one of these days. You're altogether too—oh, seat, Judy. What's the matter with you?"

In less than half an hour Doc Tripp, showing every sign of a hurried toilet, rode into the courtyard. He came swiftly into the office, bag in hand. Judith, waiting impatiently for him, lost no words in telling him her suspicions. And Doc Tripp, hearing her out, swore softly and fluently, briefly asking her pardon when he had done.

"I'm a jackass," he said fervently. "I always knew I was a fool, but I didn't know that I was an idiot! Why, Judy, those d-d pigeons have been sailing all over the ranch, billing and cooling and picking up and toting cholera germs. Any fool can see it now. I might have known something was up when Trevers bought the infernal things. It's as simple as one, two, three. Now this other jasper, pretending to look for a job, brings on some more of them, so that the disease will spread the faster. Let me get my two hands on him, Judith. For the love of God, lead me to him!"

But, instead, she led him to the dozen white pigeons which Carson brought in.

Tripp, all business again, improvised his laboratory, washed the pigeons' feet, made his test, with never another curse to tell of his progress. Judith left him and went into the courtyard, where, in a moment, Carson came to her.

"You better tell me what's up," he said sharply. "I know something is. That new guy that came in is darned hard to keep. Just as quick as I grab a shotgun an' go to shooting pigeons he meases out to the corral an' starts saddling his horse."

"Don't let him go!" Carson smiled a dry, mirthless smile.

"Bud is looking out for him right now," he explained. "Don't worry none about his going before we say so. But I want to know what the play is."

Judith told him. Carson shook his head.

"Think of that?" he muttered. "Why, a man that would do a trick like that oughtn't to be let live two seconds. Only," and he wrinkled his brows at her, "where does Poker Face come in? We ain't got no call to suspicion he's in on it."

"You watch him, just the same, Carson. We know that somebody here has been working against us. Some one who turned Shorty loose. Maybe it isn't Poker Face, and maybe it is."

"He plays a crib game like a sport an' a gentleman," muttered Carson. "He beat me seven games out'n nine last night!" And, still with that puzzled frown in his eyes, he went to watch Poker Face and the new man.

To have one of the men for whom he was responsible suspected hurt old Carson sorely. And Poker Face, the man with whom he delighted to play a game of cards—it was almost as though Carson himself had come under suspicion.

"You're going to stick around just a little while, stranger," Bud Lee was saying quietly to a shifty-eyed man in the corral. "Just why, I don't know. Orders, you know."

"Orders he d-d," snarled the newcomer. "I go where I please and when I please."

He set a foot to his stirrups. A lean, muscular hand fell lightly upon his shoulder and he was jerked back promptly. Lee smiled at him. And the shifty-eyed man, though he protested sharply, remained where he was.

A thin, saturnine man whose lips never seemed to move, a man with dead-looking eyes into which no light of emotion ever came, watched them expressively from where he stood with Carson. It was Poker Face.

"No," Poker Face answered, to a sharp question from the persistent Carson.

"Sure, are you?"

"Yes."

At last word came from Judith. Carson and Lee were to bring both of the suspected men to the house. Doc Tripp, wiping his hands on a towel, his sleeves up, bestowed upon the two of them a look of unutterable contempt and hatred.

"You low-lived skunks!" was his greeting to them.

"Easy, Doc," continued Judith from her desk. "That won't get us anywhere. Who are you?" she demanded of the man standing at Lee's side.

"Me?" demanded the man with an assumption of jauntness. "I'm Donley, Dick Donley, that's who I am!"

"When did you get here?"

"Bout an hour ago."

"What did you come for?"

"Lookin' for a job."

"Did Carson say he hadn't anything for you?"

"No, he didn't. You're askin' a lot of questions, if you want to know," he added with new surliness.

"Then why are you going in such a hurry? Don't you like to see anyone shoot pigeons?"

Donley stared back at her insolently. "Because I didn't fall for the crowd," he retorted bluntly. "An', if you want to know, because I didn't hanker for the job when I found out who was runnin' it."

"Meaning me? A girl? That it?"

"You guessed it."

"Who told you I was running the outfit?" she demanded suddenly, her eyes hard on his. "You must have found that out pretty soon! Who told you?"

"Well," said Donley, "he did. Poker Face told me."

"Who told you that his name was Poker Face?" Judith shot the question at him.

Precaution Needed in "Mad Dog" Dangers in Oklahoma

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 8.—The dread of "mad dog" need not strike terror into the hearts of children and grownups if precautions and advice given out by the health department is observed, according to Dr. Carl Puckett, state health commissioner.

"Do not kill the dog" is the first bit of advice, unless it is impossible to tie it up with chains, but if killed, the dog or cat should not be shot through the head, as that will prevent the preservation of the brain tissues for a hydrophobia diagnosis by means of a microscope, Puckett says.

Do not kill a suspected animal until sure he is suffering from rabies, as many good dogs are put to death, needlessly, and owners of pets should protect them and the lives of human beings by giving the animals immunity treatments which are available.

The disease is infectious to mammals and is invariably fatal. It has been reported since 300 B. C., and is extremely widespread, according to the health department bulletin.

In man, hydrophobia, which takes its name from the victim's fear of water, begins with approximately 48 hours of indefinite nervous symptoms, such as difficulty in walking or breathing, following in the end by a maniacal fury. During this time painful spasms accompany swallowing and air drafts or loud noises rend the sensitive patient. The voice become hoarse except during short periods of relief.

It ends by the sudden death of the man or usually he passes into a paralytic stage, then into a deep sleep and death. Animals either go into a fighting fury or become paralyzed and unable to bite.

The period over the development of rabies extends, varies from seven days to 30 days in most cases, but Pasteur treatment, once the victim is sure he is infected with the disease, will cure it, according to the health department.

The reason for such precautions as refraining from killing the animal and destroying its brain is that of the danger of causing some person to resort to the Pasteur treatment, when not infected with the disease. The treatment extends over a period of three weeks and causes the patient much discomfort, according to Puckett.

The vacationist, having as much fun as his letters indicate, has no time to write about it.

"Fools Highway"

The prevalence of Irish influence in "Fools Highway." Mary Philbin's first big Universal super-Jewel starring vehicle since "Merrie-go-round," and which opens today at the American theater, is attested by some of the well-known names in the cast: Mary Philbin, Charlie Murray, Pat O'Malley, Edwin J. Brady, Kate Price, Sherry Tansy, Steve Murphy, and Tom O'Brien. The story is a spectacular tale of the Bowery, adapted from Owen Kildare's famous life story "My Mamie Rose," and was directed by Irving Cummings.

Ohio leads the states in the number of fans, having 79 in three months.

FOUR NEW BUILDINGS TO ADD TO EFFICIENCY AT OKLAHOMA UNIVERSITY IN FALL SESSIONS

NORMAN, Sept. 8.—(Special)—Four new buildings, the Engineering and Medical buildings, and two girls' dormitories, will be ready for use at the University of Oklahoma some time this year. The engineering and medical structures probably will be ready by Thanksgiving. Contracts is to be let right away for the two dormitories, for which the ninth state legislature appropriated $300,000 to be raised by issuing of bonds. These will not be finished until late in the year.

The new Medical building, in laboratory equipment and materials, will be second to none in the United States, but as the appropriation would build only one unit of the building, it will not be large enough to accommodate all the students in the state who wish to study medicine, according to Dr. L. A. Turley, dean of the first two years of the medical school.

The construction is reinforced concrete and brick, with Bedford limestone trimmings. Collegiate gothic style of architecture is being followed. In the basement of the three story building will be located the anatomical preparation room. The ground floor will house a museum and library, lecture room, research rooms and bacteriology and pathology laboratories.

The second floor will have research and general laboratories, and a main physiology laboratory, offices and lecture rooms. On the top floor will be located the main dissection room, technical laboratories, model and chart room, and so forth.

The medical building, and the furniture with which it is equipped were designed by members of the medical faculty. The equipment will be the most up-to-date.

The only drawback to the new building is the small amount of space. The present appropriation made for the construction of the first wing does not even allow the completion of this wing. There is no money for partitions on the third floor, and in other ways, the building will not be complete, though usable.

The Engineering building, also built as one unit of a three unit building, is of the same building materials and style as the Medical building. In the building there are three floors, 50 by 100 feet. The basement will house the medical laboratories, both steam and gas engine work. Here also will be located the civil engineering dispensing room, where tools and materials are distributed.

The second floor will have the main entrance, and will contain offices, departmental library, reading room and recitation rooms. An auditorium to be used only for engineering students, but for a meeting place for students of any department in university, will be on the third floor. The seats will have tablet arms, so that they may be used as class room desks, when it is desired. The third floor will have the senior drafting rooms, blue print room and class rooms.

The new building will merely be supplementary to the old Engineering building, and it will require all space in both buildings to provide sufficient laboratories and class rooms to permit the natural growth that the college of engineering has.

In the old building will remain the electrical laboratories shops, and freshman and sophomore drafting rooms, besides class rooms and offices.

Although, with the additional space the new building will still be inadequate until the other two units have been provided for by the legislature and constructed, the engineering college will compare favorably with other schools of its rank, according to members of the engineering faculty.

SOUTHERN POINTS GIVE OUTLET TO TRUCKSTERS

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Sept. 8.—Due to the cool weather of the last week, Oklahoma farmers and trucksters are turning the tide of their shipments toward the southern cities, according to Ed C. Dustin, secretary of the state market commission.

New Orleans has wired for information on prices and weights of water melons in Oklahoma. The smaller melons ranging from 25 to 28 pounds are in demand in that city, although larger melons usually sell for a high premium. Louisiana will be in the market for several hundred cars of snap corn, thereby giving Oklahoma growers an outlet for their surplus. Corn in Oklahoma is generally in good condition.

Demands for sweet potatoes to be shipped immediately to Colorado even if they have to be sent by express, have been received by the market commission. Sweet potato quality will be better than last year, and there will be a good price, according to Dustin.

Melons however, hold the center of attraction in Oklahoma at present. Rush Springs has had approximately 100 carloads of melons that have passed inspection. Two carloads were loaded at Wheatland, Wednesday, and one carload of good melons at Purcell.

Although there is no spot demand in Kansas City due to the weather, markets in San Antonio, New Orleans, Austin, and other southern points will be found. The melon crop in the vicinity of Mustang, Okla., if showers continue, is good for two weeks yet.

Oklahoma City to Prepare for Many Fall Conventions

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 8.—Oklahoma City will open her fall conventions season on September 15, and the rush will be on immediately following the state fair, with 75 conventions scheduled for the remainder of the year.

With 175 conventions, many of them of national scope, already scheduled for 1925, this city stands second only to Chicago and New York City, as a convention city. Tulsa is second in Oklahoma with 14 scheduled, according to the conventions division of the chamber of commerce here.

The total for 1924 in this city will reach 225 with an estimated total of 75,000 convention visitors for the year. During the state fair and continuing on until June 30, 1925, an average of from two to four conventions a week are marked up.

Oklahoma City's popularity as a convention center began with the organization of the chamber of commerce convention division in 1920, when 58 meetings were held here the record up until that time.

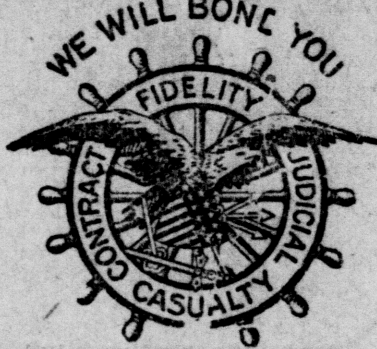

Estimates Place High Figure for O. U. Enrollment

NORMAN, Sept. 8.—(Special)—Estimates ranging from 3,500 to 3,700 are the enrollment figures which university of Oklahoma authorities think are probable for the first semester this year, although they say these are merely guesses. Dean Roy Gittinger, registrar, said 3,600, President J. S. Buchanan estimated 3,500 and George Wadsack, assistant registrar said 3,600 or 3,700.

Advance mail registration in August was promising and by September 1 students were arriving in person to enroll. Enrollment dates are any time before or on September 19 for freshmen, and September 11, 12 and 13 for others.

The cotton crop is fairly good this year, but this may mean they will put more of it in wool suits.

Women Decided to Live Lives Their Own Way

By ELIZABETH GOODRIDGE

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union)

"THAT big new building up on the hill yonder? Wasn't there last time you were in these parts, four years ago? I guess you're right. It's quite a bit of a story, though. You see, it served its purpose and—but I'm beginning at the wrong end.

"Last time you were here we talked about the number of unmarried women in New England, didn't we? You asked why some of 'em didn't emigrate. You see, though, they say there are two women for every man in this part of New England, some of 'em ought to have got married.

"There was that Elsie Winton, whom Zeke Smith had been courting off and on for twenty years or so. Well, after a time Elsie naturally got tired of him and his procrustean ways. And Molly Bowen, about whom there had been some talk concerning Ed Green, the hotel man. He didn't come up to the scratch. And there was Winnie Custance, and Jenny White, and Nell Pringle—they didn't get their beaux any further than the ice cream counter, and that's how the idea came about.

"The folks in Boston thought at first it was a rumormongers. The Chronicle, sent one of its reporters down to see, but he didn't get any further than the wicket before Elsie Winton's face stopped him. She explained the matter to him as she slammed it. 'Just a few New England women who have got tired of men and have decided to live their own lives in their own way,' she said.

"The plan was a bit from the start, especially as Molly, who was twenty-four and pretty for her age, drove the cart round the houses, wearing a mask and a loose Mother Hubbard. But what gave everybody a turn was the big sign standing outside the gate, which read 'No Men Admitted'.

"Zeke Smith was one of the first to come and see what was doing. He got as far as the wicket, and there Elsie Winton's face stopped him.

"You can't come in, Zeke," she explained. "Being a man, I'm sorry you're a man, because if you weren't you'd be welcome. But we don't have dealings with men any more, except in a business way."

"As I was saying, Molly drove the cart, and pretty soon folks began to notice that she wasn't as punctual as usual. And as for Ed, whenever the boarders howled for him to make a kid about the victuals, he wasn't anywhere in sight. The fact is, he had got into the habit of strolling out into the country about the time when Molly and the cart were due.

"I don't know how Elsie Winton heard about it, but she went right up in the air. Elsie was forty-three, and her hopes had soured from being kept too long. So there was a terrible rumpus up at the institution, and they talked of expelling Molly; but finally it simmered down and Elsie drove the cart herself after that.

"However, the folks round here, who, as you may have observed, are snoopy, couldn't help noticing that all the young fellows in the village used to take the road past here that leads up toward the institution. And we guessed that some day or other Elsie Winton would come home unexpected and raise Cain. She is a powerful woman with her tongue, as you may have noticed.

"We got so interested that nobody thought very much about anything else. Bill Wise, who farms on the ridge, told us he used to see the young fellows gossiping with the girls over the fence that had been put up.

"Well, to get on, at last the flare-up came, and in just the way we had looked for. Elsie Winton came back one morning at half-past nine, and there were like and Ed and Jim hobnobbing with Winnie and Jenny and Molly over the fence. And two or three more of the young fellows with the girls, too.

"And Molly, being a woman, saw that it was best to get her tongue in first.

"We're done with your old society, Miss Winton," she said. "Ed and I are going to be married on the first of the month."

"And Jim and I on the fifteenth," put in Winnie Custance, glaring at Elsie Winton.

"And like and I are going to be engaged as soon as he makes some money out of his poetry," continued Jenny White.

"Just then Zeke Smith's cart came up the lane, and Elsie Winton called to Zeke. 'Come here,' she said.

"Zeke came lumbering along with a grin.

"Repeat to me what you have just told me," said Elsie to Zeke.

"We're going to be married tomorrow," said Zeke, twirling his hat nervously.

"Should beat them all, sir. And when the boys understood they just let out a yell, and started kissing and hugging all round. So after that the society was naturally dissolved, and Zeke uses the house to keep his chickens in. But I guess the spirit of enterprise hasn't died out of New England yet, even if the women did have to show the men they couldn't have them in order to bring them up to the scratch.

"Yes, they gave Mr. and Mrs. Smith a baby grand. Don't you think it was worth it?"

More than 29,000 teachers principals and superintendents are now in service in New York City's public schools.

Rog Hornsby Has Good Chance To Beat High Average Record

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

Rogers Hornsby, batting demon of the National league, is now thundering down the batting trail on his way to two new hitting records.

If this Cardinal star maintains the dizzy pace he has set to date he may—
Break the season average record of .438, set by Hugh Duffy of the Boston Red Sox in 1894. And shatter the record of Hans Wagner, who led the National league in batting four consecutive years.

The mark set by Duffy in '94 has been threatened seriously but five times up to this year. For the three seasons after Duffy hung up his great mark it seemed destined to fall. In 1895 Jess Burkett, with the Cleveland club, climbed to .423. The next year he reached the .410 mark. Then Willie Keeler brushed all opposition aside and with his little choked swing, swatted his way to fame and a .432 average.

Keeler slipped the next year, though, and wound up with a .379 average.

Ed Deleahanty took a crack at the high mark in 1899 and succeeded in chalking up an average of .408 for the campaign the Philadelphia club waged that year.

Deleahanty's mark ended the .400 reign until Hornsby, while winning the National league crown the third consecutive year, showed his average just one point above the .400 line. He had come within three points of .400 the previous year.

Wagner was the only man who had ever ruled the National league batting-roost more than two years in succession when he held the title four consecutive seasons. It seemed impossible then that his re-

Fall's lawyers asked for a rule to show why the new proceedings should not be quashed contending they were merely a "fishing expedition" not designed to obtain indictments but to obtain evidence.
